A Political Profile

Every Cedarville College alumnus can participate in the political arena—as a concerned citizen, as a registered voter, and as a prayer warrior for our nation. “I urge...that requests, prayers, intercession, and thanksgiving be made for everyone—for kings and all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness” (1 Timothy 2:1,2 NIV). A few Cedarville College alumni have chosen to pursue careers in government. Enter the political arena with 1988 graduate Jill Wyse as she shares her experience.

My interest in politics began during a family vacation to our nation's capital. Our family had lunch with then Congressman Michael DeWine (R) from Cedarville, Ohio, and I was fascinated by the whole experience. On our way home, at the age of 12, I told my parents that when I grew up, I wanted to move to Washington, D.C. and work for a congressman.

While at Cedarville College, I majored in communications with a minor in business. During my junior year, I participated in an internship program with Congressman DeWine's office in Washington, D.C. After my internship, I stayed in contact with DeWine's office, volunteering my assistance. The week of college graduation, Congressman DeWine's office called me to tell me about a position opening in a United States senator's office. The day of graduation, I flew to Washington and had an interview the following day with Senator Bob Kasten (R) of Wisconsin. I started with the senator two days later.

Working for Senator Kasten in the U.S. Senate for three years was an educational and exhilarating experience. Senator Kasten was the ranking member on the foreign operations subcommittee of the appropriations committee. As a result, I was able to meet Washington insiders, as well as world-renowned leaders such as Yitzhak Rabin and Shimon Peres.

One of the biggest highlights for me while working in the Senate happened at the U.S. Capitol with Senator Bob Dole. After a meeting in his office, Senator Dole asked if we could wait for a few minutes for a surprise. Shortly thereafter, Secretary of State James Baker and former President Richard Nixon entered the room, and Senator Dole introduced them to me.

In 1990, George V. Voinovich and Michael R. DeWine successfully ran for governor and lieutenant governor of Ohio. Shortly after they took office in 1991, I returned to Ohio to work for Lt. Governor DeWine. I worked in his personal office for eight months, until he asked me to work for him at the State and Local Government Commission. I worked for DeWine at the Commission until he won election to the United States Senate in 1994. After the election, I discussed my career plans with Senator DeWine. I told him that as much as I would like to continue to work for him, I did not desire to move back to Washington, D.C. I made the decision to stay in Ohio to work for one of the six statewide Republican officeholders.

The 1994 election was a Republican landslide! Every statewide office in Ohio was occupied by a Republican. Governor Voinovich was also successful in his re-election bid. Nancy Hollister, the former mayor of Marietta, was his running mate. I stayed at the State and Local Government Commission to work for

Lt. Governor Hollister and was promoted to deputy director.

Working for a public officeholder means doing a lot of behind-the-scenes, after-hours volunteering. Since moving back to Ohio in 1991, I have been involved in many campaigns. I worked on DeWine's 1992 and 1994 Senate campaigns, as well as the 1996 Dole/Kemp presidential campaign. In the spring of 1996, I had the pleasure of staffing Elizabeth Dole on campaign stops at Senator DeWine's home in Cedarville, Ohio and at Mayor Greg Lashutka's home in Columbus.

The Education Process

British statesman Edmund Burke said: "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil, is for good men to do nothing." At Cedarville College, the Department of Social Sciences and History takes Burke's words very seriously. We have endeavored to prepare young people to become active participants in today's society.

The foundation of our teaching is the Bible. Paul reminds us in 2 Timothy that the Scriptures have a purpose: they are to teach, reprove and correct us, and to instruct us in righteousness, so that we may be equipped for a life of good work (3:16). As we prepare the students to properly integrate the truth of God's Word into their everyday lives, they will be better prepared to face a world that is becoming increasingly evil.

In our department, students are introduced to the political process in various survey courses, such as American National Government, American State and Local Government, and Introduction to Public Administration. The students begin to apply these principles in the more focused upper level courses in Public Policy, Political Dynamics, and The Legislative Process. In our many internship opportunities, our students are able to actually apply in real situations what they have learned in the classroom.

Through these many experiences, in the classroom and out, Cedarville students are being prepared by the Social Sciences and History faculty to confront our society with a Christian world view. The desired result, then, is to stem the tide of evil and advance the cause of Christ to a lost and dying world.

Kevin Sims '74, associate professor of political science

"Grass Roots" Involvement

The most local of political involvement is the precinct level, and Dr. Dwayne Frank '60, professor of education, is serving in his second four-year term as chairperson of his precinct and delegate to the Greene County Central Committee of the Republican Party. "The Central committee meets monthly and makes decisions regarding party policy for the county," says Dwayne. "We assist candidates running for office, have fund-raisers, and do the legwork, like putting up signs, manning county fair booths, and getting voters to the polls. We have a position statement on issues to which we hold candidates responsible after they're elected."

Dwayne graduated with a B.A. in social science from Cedarville and a B.S. in education from Central State University and later earned an M.S. at the College of Idaho and an Ed.D. at the University of Idaho. After teaching in Boise at the high school level for eight years, he returned to Cedarville to join the faculty of the Department of Education. He served as department chair for three years and, during a one-year leave of absence, as curriculum consultant for the Clark County Board of Education.

As for his political involvement, Dwayne emphasizes that he's "just one of the people." Historically, the very foundation of our great country's political process is that kind of involvement: "grass roots."

A Challenge To Community Involvement

Sherry Rotramel Bouquet, mother of two, wife of a pastor, and a 1987 Cedarville College graduate with degrees in psychology and communication arts, became involved in her community. On October 14, 1996, the Ashland, Ohio Public Library made a change in its check-out policy regarding the video collection, which allows any patron of any age to check out any video in the libraries holdings, including R-rated videos. This open access policy troubled Sherry and many in the Ashland community; so they got to work.

A petition campaign and presentations to the Ashland Public Library Board of Trustees meeting forced the board to reconsider the policy change. The board voted unanimously to give parents the option to restrict videos from their children while keeping the open access policy for the entire video collection. Sherry made a presentation at that meeting and told board members prior to their vote that efforts to restrict R-rated videos was not censorship by thwarting the freedom rights of children. Bouquet spoke for the protection of children and asked for policies that would not put minors at the mercy of harmful materials which would completely circumvent the rights and responsibilities of parents to protect and guide their children. Sherry said, "Parents are not all-knowing and all-present" and asked for a partnership between parents and the library with the goal of protecting children from harmful material, especially in light of future Internet possibilities.

Under the American Library Association's Intellectual Freedom Manual, the Library Bill of Rights, and the Freedom to Read policies, libraries all over the country are being guided to take a liberal stand in offering "freedoms" to all people of all ages. Sherry states that through this process and hours of research she has uncovered extreme philosophies which should alarm any Christian and particularly parents. "These documents which libraries adhere to are not legal and binding, and they portray a rather farfetched interpretation and extrapolation of First Amendment rights," Sherry says. "I plan on continuing my efforts to partner with our library in this public forum to see that it is run by our community and that those on the board are exposed to family-friendly resources for library policy making." Bouquet has discussed the possibility of serving on the Board of Trustees for the Ashland Public Library. Sherry encourages others to be salt and light in the public forums of their communities.

Learning Law

Matthew Martens '93, originally from Trenton, New Jersey and an accounting major at Cedarville College, recently finished first in his law school class at the University of North Carolina. Matthew presently works as a law clerk for Judge David Sentelle of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. As a law clerk, Matthew reads the appellate briefs filed in those cases to be heard by the court and then recommends an outcome based on his reading of the relevant law. Once the court decides the case, Matthew drafts an opinion announcing the court's decision. Following his one-year clerkship with Judge Sentelle, Matthew will begin a clerkship with Chief Justice William Rehnquist of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Matthew believes that one of the most disturbing things about the political arena today is that it is widely viewed by the public as including the court system. For example, in November 1992, after a fierce political struggle, the people of Colorado adopted by referendum an amendment to their state constitution that prohibited the state from adopting laws conferring on homosexuals a preferred legal status. The losers in this political struggle, unwilling to accept defeat, filed a lawsuit in which they argued that the Colorado amendment violated the federal constitution. This past June, a divided United States Supreme Court agreed in Romer v. Evans. (Matthew worked on behalf of the state of Colorado in that case, writing a significant portion of the state's brief to the Supreme Court.) But as the dissenting justices in Romer recognized, the Court had no business injecting itself into the "Kulturkampf" (German for "culture war") over gay rights. That issue is one to be addressed by "the political branches" alone. Similar illegitimate intrusions into the political arena by the Supreme Court can be seen in cases like Roe v. Wade (abortion), Lee v. Weisman (high school graduation prayers), and United States v. VMI (single-sex education).

While believers are vocal in their opposition to wrongheaded decisions such as Roe and Romer, Martens points out that we as Christians often fail to speak against Supreme Court forays into the political arena when the result is favorable to us, though such intrusions are no more legitimate. Matthew urges believers to speak out consistently against judicial intrusions into the political arena, not only when the results of such intrusions are morally flawed, but because the intrusions themselves are illegitimate whatever the outcome.

Matthew and his wife, Wendy (Walters '94), live in Oakton, Virginia, where Wendy is a staff auditor with Goldklang, Cavanaugh, and Associates.

From The Director's Chair

Welcome to Alumni Hall! It is a magnificent entrance to the Dixon Ministry Center and named to honor all 17,590 members of the Cedarville College Alumni Association. Several reunion and graduating classes have given gifts befitting this building—"The Jeremiah Chapel" lettering, class of 1976; the 25-year reunion financial contribution, class of 1971; the alumni recognition plaque, class of 1991; the brass college seal, class of 1995; and the pulpit furniture, class of 1996. In total, almost 2,000 alumni have given over $500,000 for this newest facility. We are praying for other alumni to join this effort with any size gift. We also encourage you to make a trip to campus to see the Dixon Ministry Center and Alumni Hall for yourself!

Enjoy this blessed holiday season,

Jane

Welcome New Alumni Council Members

The Cedarville College Alumni Association is pleased to welcome our newest additions to the Alumni Council, Sherri Watson Smith '86 and David Bennett '87! Sherri and David will join the Alumni Council to serve four-year terms, as stated by the Alumni Association Constitution. Rotating off the Alumni Council after serving faithfully for four years are Angela Cooke Jackson '84 and DeMaurice Smith '85.

After earning her degree in English with an emphasis in professional writing, Sherri Watson Smith '86 remained at Cedarville College as an admissions coordinator and later as an annual fund officer. She has been published several times in The Sunday School Planner for Scripture Press Publications and is a contributing writer to her church newsletter.

Currently the director of Moody Institute of Science in Chicago, Sherri speaks at Sunday school conventions and to women's groups. She is an active member of First Baptist Church in Downers Grove, where her husband, John, is the associate pastor of education. She teaches a women's Sunday school class, directs Awana for fifth- and sixth-grade girls, co-leads the college and career group, sings in the choir, participates on a drama team, and serves in a mentoring program. John and Sherri live in Westmont, Illinois.

Sherri represents Cedarville College at local college fairs and has been a member of the Torch Club since 1991.

David Bennett '87 graduated from Cedarville with degrees in English and presemnary Bible. He went on to earn a master of theology degree from Dallas Theological Seminary in 1991 and a master's degree in pastoral counseling from Ashland University in 1995. For five years he pastored The Little Church in the Vale near Cleveland, Ohio. He is now employed as a financial consultant with Merrill Lynch in Columbus, Ohio. David uses his skills as financial planner to present biblically-based seminars on estate planning, charitable giving, retirement planning, and debt reduction. This year, he has presented more than 40 seminars in area churches.

A member of Karl Road Baptist Church, David teaches Sunday school, participates on a drama team, ushers, and helps with Vacation Bible School. David and his wife, Kathy, are rearing their two sons, Joel (3) and Jay (1), in Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

The purpose of the Alumni Association shall be the promotion of the interests of Cedarville College and the provision of Christian fellowship, information, education, and service opportunities to the glory of God.

1996 Alumnus of the Year

Dr. Kenneth Nichols '68

Dr. Kenneth Nichols is currently the vice president of student development at Christian Heritage College in El Cajon, California, where he has served for the past ten years. He serves on the senior staff of the Shadow Mountain Community Church as pastor of family ministries and is also an adjunct faculty member of Moody Graduate School. Christian Heritage dedicated the 1996 Yearbook to Ken in recognition of his service to the College.

"I've never gotten over Cedarville College," says Ken. "I'm so thankful to God for my journey here. It changed my life forever. This is where the foundation of my commitment to serve God was established." Ken graduated from Cedarville College in Christian education in 1968. He earned an M.S. in counseling at Wright State University, an M.A. in counseling/psychology at Rosemead Graduate School, and a Psy.D. at Rosemead. His past professional experience includes serving as director of counseling at Cedarville College (1970-1974) and dean of students and professor at Los Angeles Baptist College (1974-1978). He also worked as staff counselor with psychiatric services in Ft. Wayne, Indiana (1979-1982).

He founded ALIVE Counseling Ministries in 1979 while he was director of counseling at Blackhawk Baptist Church in Fort Wayne, Indiana. ALIVE (Always Living In View of Eternity) Ministries is a Christian nonprofit corporation, providing seminars through which Ken ministers throughout the U.S., in Canada, and in Europe. The seminars are available on cassette tape. He is a popular speaker with adults and young people alike. Christian leaders, pastors, mission agencies, and college administrations frequently call upon Ken as a consultant.

Ken's latest publication is Harnessing the Incredible Power of Fear (El Cajon: Counseling Alive Ministries, 1996). He has also published two booklets: "Remedies for Negative Thinking" (available in a Spanish translation entitled: "Release from the Bondage of Fears") and "Prescription for a Healthy Heart."

He and his wife, Marlene Werner '68N, have three children, Mark, Kendra, and Kara, and two grandchildren.

1996 Young Alumna of the Year

Diane Lichtensteiger '86

"Beijing is where I have spent the last eight and a half years of my life," says Diane Lichtensteiger, a 1986 graduate in business administration. "I have been part of a Cedarville College program that provides teachers of English to university students in Beijing, with the hope of also being able to share the gospel with them. The Lord has blessed that work, and I am excited to be a part of it."

For the last five years, Diane has directed Cedarville's Educational Resources and Assistance Program (ERAP) at the People's University of Beijing and the Beijing Institute for Light Industry. She and her fellow staff members teach English to over 200 outstanding Chinese students each year.

Diane first went to China as part of an MIS basketball team in 1981. During three subsequent visits to study Chinese or to lead MIS teams, the Lord gave her a deep love for the Chinese people and a commitment to serve them as His ambassador.

She is highly regarded in her work and was honored this year with an Outstanding Teacher Award from People's University, the first time the university has recognized a foreign teacher in this way. The award acknowledged her "superior and exemplary work" as a teacher of English, and administrators, faculty, and students in attendance gave speeches of appreciation. In her acceptance, Diane gave God "all the credit" for any positive things she had accomplished.

"It is amazing to be honored for something you yourself do not consider an outstanding achievement; it is just daily trying to do the work the Lord puts in front of you," Diane reflects. "It is God's call that has taken me to China and His enablement that brings any accomplishment of value, so the credit and my thanks go to Him."

This remarkable young lady has had significant input into the lives of many Chinese people, especially university students. Only eternity will reveal the fruit of Diane's testimony in China.

1996 Honorary Alumnus of the Year

Dr. Robert Gromacki

Dr. Robert G. Gromacki came to Cedarville College in 1960 to begin a long and illustrious career as college professor, lecturer, conference speaker, author, tour leader, and pastor. He and his wife, Gloria, reared two children, Gary '80 and Gail Lawhead '83, and enjoy six grandchildren.

Dr. Gromacki holds a Th.B. degree from Baptist Bible Seminary, a Th.M. from Dallas Theological Seminary, and a Th.D. from Grace Theological Seminary. His studies included postdoctoral work at the Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem. Interest in Israel led him to take eight tours to that country, serving as on-site teacher for four of them.

He received the Distinguished Educator Award from the Cedarville Alumni Association in 1975 and was named Cedarville's Faculty Member of the Year in 1976. Baptist Bible College honored him with the Alumni Outstanding Service Award in 1985. He was invited to deliver five Staley Foundation Lectureships.

A prolific writer, Dr. Gromacki has published 15 books and over 100 articles on biblical themes. He is a frequent contributor to Cedarville's TORCH and Inspire publications and The Trumpeter. He also writes a monthly article for The Record-Herald, daily newspaper of Washington Court House, Ohio. Dr. Gromacki was invited to contribute chapters or articles in several recent publications: Dictionary of Evangelical Theology (Kregel), When the Trumpet Sounds (Harvest House), and Basic Theology Applied (Victor Press), a work published in honor of Dr. Charles C. Ryrie.

A church planting ministry in Washington Court House, Ohio has brought great blessing to his heart. Grace Community Baptist Church began as a Bible study with 15 people in 1990. He taught the study and became the church's founding pastor. With attendance currently at 275 and still growing, Grace Community now has its own building on 18 acres.

"God has allowed me to serve Him and our Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, through Cedarville College for the past 36 years," says Bob Gromacki. "It has been a joy and a blessing to be a part of this growing institution."

1996 Distinguished Service Awards

Ernie and Martha White

One side of Ernie and Martha White's refrigerator is covered with prayer cards and photos of Cedarville College alumni who are in full-time ministry. These represent only a handful of the hundreds of Cedarville students who, during their college years, laid claim to "Grandpa and Grandma White's place" as their second home.

Even before the Whites moved to Cedarville from Martins Ferry, Ohio following Ernie's retirement in 1973, their daughter Betty Bertschinger '68 was regularly opening her home to Cedarville students. Betty was director of the health clinic and trainer for the athletic teams.

Any evening during the following two decades, one could find 20-30 or more students enjoying Grandpa White's stories, popcorn, table games, fireplace or, in warm weather, volleyball in the swimming pool.

Students found comfort for broken hearts, reprimands for misbehavior, and challenges to deepen their walk with the Lord, all offered in love. The byword among the students was, "When you hear that change in Grandpa's tone of voice, you'd better listen!" The Whites' counsel over the years sometimes even extended to parents. Frequently, a returning alum reminds them of a time when a word of encouragement or a stern challenge proved to be a turning point in that student's life.

The Whites have worked with young people all their married life: Sunday school teaching, youth fellowship, AWANA, greeting, van ministry.... Ernie has served as a deacon and has been involved with Campus Bible Fellowship. He worked with Boy Scouts for many years in Martins Ferry. They are members of Grace Baptist Church in Cedarville. And they rarely miss a college basketball game.

"We've loved those kids," says Ernie. "We could talk to them like family. Some of the profs told us we could do more for them than they could because of that."

He loves golf and still plays, saying he's waited 50 years for a hole-in-one. Ernie and Martha have four daughters: Betty, Barbara Wilson, Bonnie Oliver '87, and Amy Jacob. They enjoy 15 grandchildren and 35 great-grandchildren!

Remember those days when you "hit the hardwood" as a Yellow Jacket basketball player? Or when you stood in the stands as a spirited fan and cheered the Jackets to victory? Prepare for Yellow Jacket Fever to strike the campus of Cedarville College and plan now to be a part of Alumni Basketball Weekend—January 31 & February 1, 1997. Watch your mail in early January for more details on this annual event.

A major technological advancement on the campus is Cedarville's participation in OhioLINK, a statewide library resource sharing network of over 50 state and private colleges and universities. This network includes a common on-line computer catalog of nearly six million titles. Students and faculty can access and request materials electronically through this central catalog 24 hours a day, seven days a week from their residence hall rooms, offices, and computer labs. Materials are delivered daily from other libraries at no cost to students. This resource dramatically expands the research materials available to the college family. Cedarville is one of only eight independent colleges in Ohio to offer this service to students.

On October 7, 1996, 3,000 students, faculty, staff, and administrators met at the James T. Jeremiah Chapel to walk together into the Dixon Ministry Center for the first chapel service in the new Jeremiah Chapel. Eager hands carried hymnals from one building to the other. Dr. and Mrs. Dixon led the way over the bridge where the procession was greeted by a brass choir on the steps. Inside the chapel, the college family sang worship choruses and prayed. A highlight was the recognition of many of the construction workers. As those who had worked on this facility for the past 18 months came onto the platform, the college family responded with a four-minute standing ovation. Dr. Dixon led in heartfelt prayer for the construction crew and their families.

Following the dedication of the Dixon Ministry Center and new Jeremiah Chapel, the Administrative Council designated the former James T. Jeremiah Chapel as "Cedar Hall." The new name will remain in use until the Council determines the future role of this building which served as the chapel for the college family for 20 years. Cedar Hall currently houses the Social Work Department and offices of a development officer, as well as the package-handling function of the college post office. The auditorium is available and may be scheduled for use.

Government Service in Puerto Rico

"Dr. Dixon's emphasis on excellence affects the way I approach my work," says Ken Oliver-Méndez '86. "If your work reflects quality as to the Lord, it has value and is a testimony to others." Ken currently serves as assistant secretary of state for the commonwealth of Puerto Rico, a position that brings him into contact with world leaders and policy makers.

Ken's journey into public service began with a broadcasting degree and an interest in journalism. Ken worked at ABC's national network news bureau in his hometown of Washington, D.C. and then moved on to complete a master's degree in mass communication at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. While at Miami, Ken developed a keen interest in his mother's homeland of Puerto Rico and the Spanish language.

Following a job as news editor with the Mutual Broadcasting System, Ken entered public service in a position with Voice of America (VOA). By 1990, Ken had developed his Spanish language skills sufficiently to serve as a news producer at Radio Marti, the Cuban broadcast of VOA.

Ken's interest in Puerto Rico finally led him to work as a volunteer in Pedro Rossello's successful campaign for governor. Following Rossello's election, Ken became press secretary to Carlos Romero, Puerto Rico's nonvoting representative in the U.S. Congress.

In 1995, after a stint as a communications consultant to the Economic Development Administration of Puerto Rico, Ken was appointed to his present position in Governor Rosello's administration. Ken views himself and his government as a bridge of understanding between the cultural and language differences that separate North and South (Latin) America.

He challenges Christians who may be cynical about the role of government to re-evaluate their position in light of biblical mandates. He admits that it is difficult to be overt in his testimony without crossing the boundaries of church/state separation. However, he daily experiences the effects that committed Christians can have as they live out their faith as public servants.

Advocate for Cedarville College

"The legal profession is a service industry," states David K. "Kelly" Fath, Jr. '91. "This is a task I have been training for since my senior year of high school. I enjoy helping others whether it be providing legal advice, creating wills and other legal documents, or helping resolve disputes."

After graduation, Kelly served in the Cedarville College admissions office for one year before attending Georgetown University Law Center. He graduated from Georgetown in 1995 and is currently employed with the law firm of Scholten and Fant in Grand Haven, Michigan. The firm represents numerous townships and municipalities in western Michigan, giving Kelly direct access to local political leaders and spurring his involvement. Kelly is an advocate for political involvement. "Speaking out at the local level can often have a broader effect than one would think," states Kelly. He encourages others to pay attention to the actions of their state and national elected officials because they are elected to office by the people and often rely on constituents' input in making decisions and setting legislative agendas. Kelly's goals include the possibility of running for state or national political office.

Kelly cites several helpful alumni connections as he has pursued his education and career. John Hart '81 helped as Kelly made the decision to work before going on to law school. DeMaurice Smith '85 was a connection for Kelly in Washington, D.C. Tom DeMeester '83 helped link Kelly with the job market in western Michigan, and Kelly first learned of his firm through the father of Carrie Scott '96 whom Kelly met while working for admissions. Working at Scholten and Fant, Kelly found that Kevin Todd '85 occasionally serves as the firm's local counsel in Chicago. "Just being able to connect with other Cedarville College alumni in the legal field is an encouragement," states Kelly, and he keeps in regular contact with fellow attorneys Dave Wyand '91 in Baltimore and Paul McGrady '93 in Chicago.

Kelly continues to represent Cedarville at local schools, churches, and college fairs and to call potential students in his area. He serves as the regional alumni coordinator for western Michigan and has hosted alumni gatherings in both Grand Rapids and Washington, D.C. Kelly feels that his loyalty to Cedarville College stems from much more than friendships and keeping in touch with campus. "Alumni are an indication of how strong the school is. I see recent grads stepping into leadership roles, serving the community, active in the local church, and defending their faith to their neighbors. These signs of maturity are evidence that Cedarville College is doing what a Christian college should be doing."

A member of Calvary Baptist Church in Muskegon, Kelly is active in the singles ministry. He is also a member of the Christian Legal Society. David and Kathy Fath, his dad and mom, serve First Baptist Church in Bowling Green, Ohio, where David is the senior pastor. Other family members who graduated from Cedarville are Kelly's grandmother, Robinette Williams Prine '39, brother Kevin '95, and sister-in-law Heather (Peters) '94.

Military Justice

On October 27, 1995, at Fort Bragg Army Base in Fayetteville, North Carolina, 27-year-old Sgt. William J. Kruetzer ambushed his fellow soldiers as they gathered for morning formations. After morning reveille, as the unarmed soldiers were beginning their run, Kruetzer opened fire from his hiding place in the woodline. He wounded 19 people. The brigade commander charged unarmed to stop him. Major Stephen M. Badger died some time later from a head wound. Kruetzer shot two more officers and was finally stopped when tackled and subdued by four men. Major John Einwechter '84 was transferred to the 82nd Airborne to be the prosecutor for the army in the trial of Sgt. Kruetzer. After graduating magna cum laude from Cornell University Law School, Einwechter had quickly established a reputation as a winning prosecutor.

Einwechter was known to the 82nd Airborne. Earlier in his military career, he had been stationed at Fort Bragg for seven and a half years as a paratrooper.

Major Einwechter and his assistant spent eight months preparing for Kruetzer's trial. Because of national news coverage since the day of the attack, all attorneys were instructed to refrain from speaking to the media. The trial itself lasted five days. Extra courtrooms with closed circuit television were used for overflow spectators.

The only real issue in the trial was the defendant's mental state. Einwechter reports that the defense strategy was to "negate intent," so that no first degree murder charge could be brought against the defendant. In the prosecution, Einwechter showed evidence of an intent to harm through Kruetzer's careful planning and previous comments which indicated the natural and probable effects of the act. Kruetzer was found guilty of first degree murder and was given the death penalty. Now he sits on death row in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, presently the ninth soldier awaiting death.

When asked about the political implications of this trial, Major Einwechter commented that while the army is a conservative environment, it is apolitical. Because the trial was heavily covered by national and local media, the trial was cast in the spotlight. According to Einwechter, "Since the 1950s, reforms of the military justice system have made it a full partner in the national justice system and in many ways more favorable to the defense than state court systems because a military jury has a more subtle view of the moral ambiguities that surround the trial." Einwechter succeeded in executing a quick trial with a quick result, even when the defense refused to negotiate any compromise on the partial mental responsibility defense.

Major Einwechter is now at the University of Virginia studying for a master of laws degree at the Army's JAG School. Upon completion of this degree, he will take a teaching post at the JAG School as professor of criminal law. He and his wife, Rebecca, and their eight children live in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Heritage Alumni Homecoming Reunion

Cedarville College Heritage Alumni gathered during Homecoming 1996 for a reunion all their own! Forty men and women attended the morning chapel with President Paul Dixon bringing the State of the College Address and recognition to the Heritage Alumni. Following the 10 a.m. service, the group enjoyed a luncheon in the President's Dining Room and a question and answer time with Jane Adams Smith '84, director of alumni relations. Pictured are alumni, spouses, and guests.

New Scholarship Fund Available

The David H. and Edith W. Clark Scholarship Fund was created in 1994 in memory of Edith Wigal Clark '29. Edith, a faithful supporter of Cedarville College, was active in the Alumni Association. Her willingness to help with the retired educators luncheon, class reunion committees, recruiting students, and prayer support for students was exemplary.

Edith was also an active member of her church, Jamestown United Methodist.

The scholarship is designed to assist Cedarville College students in any discipline of study. The recipient must be a sophomore, junior, or senior; demonstrate financial need; maintain a grade point average of 2.5 or above; and intend to complete his or her studies at Cedarville College. During the 1996-97 academic year, four students received scholarships—Doug Amundson, Nathan Miller,

Naomi Kossel, and Kerry Allen.

Edith Clark was a tremendous student and teacher. She earned her undergraduate degree with honors in Latin, English, history, social science, and French. Her master's degree from The Ohio State University was granted in 1955. Edith taught for 35 years, retiring in 1971. The Clarks were married in June 1937 and enjoyed 57 years of marriage before Edith's homegoing in 1994.

Edith gave much credit to Cedarville College for reinforcing the moral training she received from her parents. She wrote, "Attendance at chapel service was required every day of the week during my years at college. I felt enriched by that experience. Courses in Bible were a required part of the curriculum which also strengthened my spiritual life." And thanks to the Clarks' involvement in Cedarville College, those principles which were true in the 1920s and 30s remain today.

On August 26, 1996, the Carlisle Board of Education (New Carlisle, Ohio) voted unanimously to rename the district's oldest building The Charles F. Chamberlain Middle School after an educator who made an impact on students there for 35 years. Charles "Bud" Chamberlain '35 was a junior in high school when the building originally opened its doors in 1931. The Board honored Bud for more than six decades of service to this school district and the community as the building changed from junior high to middle school status. Crediting his high school English teacher for inspiring him to go into education, along with the sacrifices his parents made, Chamberlain thanked his wife, Martha, for her support throughout their 56-year marriage. Earlier this year, Bud was named Carlisle's Citizen of the Year. Born and raised in Carlisle, he served as teacher, primary school principal, baseball and basketball coach, and assistant superintendent before retiring in 1975. Chamberlain also served as the clerk-treasurer of the district. Congratulations to our very own Charles Chamberlain!

While The Dixon Ministry Center is already in use, the College has until December 31 to complete the campaign for its funding and receive a $500,000 Kresge Foundation challenge grant. The Kresge Foundation will provide the final $500,000 of the campaign if others supply the balance. As the Inspire went to press, the College still needed approximately $390,000 to receive the grant. Gifts and commitments to give through 1998 qualify to meet The Kresge Foundations requirements. To date, almost 2,000 alumni have participated through direct or reunion gifts, providing over $500,000 toward the project. The College will recognize any alumnus who gives, no matter the size of the gift, on a plaque in Alumni Hall.

An important element of the new Jeremiah Chapel is the Rogers 90 series organ. The instrument was dedicated on November 8 during a special concert featuring organist Dan Miller. When Dan is not at work as the minister of music/organist for Calvary Church in Charlotte, North Carolina, he is publishing, performing, and recording music. Along with four CD recordings to his credit, Dan has appeared with the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra, the Charlotte Philharmonic, and the Florida Philharmonic. According to Dan, "It was a privilege to perform in this gorgeous facility and to show off the capabilities of this wonderful instrument."

For the second consecutive year, U.S. News & World Report ranked Cedarville College third among liberal arts colleges in the midwest region in its 1997 "Best Value" rankings. U.S. News devised the best value rankings to provide a realistic measure of where students can get the best education for the cost. Cedarville placed after Dordt College in Iowa and Alverno College in Wisconsin.

Alumni Week welcomed alumni musicians and guest speakers to the Cedarville College chapel platform. Others not pictured who ministered were Ken Nichols '68 (1996 Alumnus of the Year, see page 3); Carpe Diem, a jazz ensemble which brought back Brian Megilligan '94, Steve Wintle '94, Mike Leshan '94, and Jeremy Washburn '96; and Stacy Towle Morgan '81, who provided the students a challenge through word and music.

Craig Slater '84

The 20 year reunion was celebrated in grand style with an indoor barbeque dinner, children's program, and blast from the past. The class of 1976 also rode in the Homecoming parade.

Class of '76

UAAers Jay VanHeukelum, Doug Bayler, Craig Hamer, and Jon Williams assisted the alumni office with Homecoming preparation and events.

A highlight of the weekend! Returning members of the Class of 1996 (along with the college seal located in Alumni Hall. Joined by Dr. Dixon and class members Nicholas and Shane too!), this photo makes a treasured memory of the weekend.

The 5 year reunion for the Class of 1991 set a record in attendance. Over 235 class, family, and faculty members enjoyed the gathering.

The Alumni Scholarship Auction raised over $7,500 for the endowed fund principal. Thanks to Sandy Holwerda Schlappi '77 for her acquisition of 100 items auctioned, to Bart Sheridan for donating his services, and to all who attended and supported this effort.

David '86 and Marlene Seifert Williams '86 and sons enjoyed the 10 year reunion dessert buffet, a new class directory, and special activities for the children.

Moonlight Madness, a Homecoming event which is becoming increasingly popular with students and young alumni, kicked off the 1996-97 basketball season.

The senior class won the float competition with a replica of Mount Rushmore and stilt walker Scott Judkins as Uncle Sam.

Doug '85 and Chrissy Friedken Miller '88 enjoyed the parade with their children, Drew and Aaron.

The class of 1966 chose as their meeting place the executive conference room of the Dixon Ministry Center.

The class of 1961 dined in the President's Dining Room, enjoying the company of close friends.

AMIAH CHAPEL

Artists performing during Homecoming '96 included the ever-popular Cathedrals and world-renowned pianists Nielson and Young.

BBI alumni lunched in the President's Dining Room on Saturday afternoon. This effort, headed each year by Norma McQuinn Deranak '54N, provides an opportunity for fellowship for those students, faculty, and administrators who were witness to the change from Baptist Bible Institute to Cedarville College.

The Class of 1995 gathered at their senior class gift, the five-foot brass Dixon and class advisors Ben '86 and Jane Adams Smith '84 (along with red memory of Homecoming 1996. Thanks, Class of 1995-We love you! Jane and Ben Senior Sara Ludwig was crowned Homecoming queen.

Jonathan '86 and Diane McClure Price '88 enjoyed Homecoming festivities with his parents, Bill and Mary Jo Price.

Jeremy Grinnell '95 linked with faculty member Dr. David Robey in Alumni Hall.

The Class of 1971 highlighted their 25 year reunion with a Saturday morning breakfast at President and Mrs. Dixon's home. Approximately 55 attended the weekend festivities for this milestone event.

The Dixon Ministry Center is named in honor of Dr. Paul '94H and Pat Landers Dixon '94H for their inspiring service to Cedarville College for the past 25 years. The announcement was made public for the first time during the dedication ceremony on Saturday, October 19, 1996.

New to Cedarville's Alumni Internet web site is an online alumni directory. To be included, just submit your name, graduation year, and current e-mail address to alumni@cedarville.edu and we can add you to the list. Next time you surf the web, check and see who's online.

Spurred by 676 new freshmen, Cedarville broke the 2,500 mark this fall when 2,509 students enrolled at the College—a sixth consecutive record enrollment. Vice President for Enrollment Management David Ormsbee '78 is pleased with the results. "We are grateful for both the quantity and quality of students who chose to attend Cedarville this year," said Ormsbee. In addition to strong Christian testimonies, the GPAs and ACT/SAT scores of this year's freshmen are at an all-time high. Forty-one percent came from Christian high schools and two percent from home schools.

The west wing of the Dixon Ministry Center has been named The Bolthouse Center for Music in honor of William and Nora Bolthouse of Bakersfield, California. Mr. Bolthouse is president and CEO of Wm. Bolthouse Farms, Inc., a world leader in carrot production. Mrs. Bolthouse continues to influence the lives of her children and grandchildren for the Lord and has touched others through her exemplary prayer life and coaching Bible quiz teams in their church. Longtime friends of the College, both model traits held in high esteem by Cedarville College and the Department of Music.

The Reese Center for Christian Ministries, home to the College's Division of Christian Ministries, honors Bob and Polly Reese of Elkhart, Indiana. Bob helped found Reese Products, Inc., a premiere manufacturer of trailer hitches and other equipment. Polly is a career wife, mother, and grandmother. Both take an active interest in missions and in missionaryes around the world, as well as diligently serving in their local church. The Reeses have been friends of the College for many years and embody the spirit that the Division of Christian Ministries desires to help instill in Cedarville students.

Regional Gatherings

Milwaukee, Wisconsin

Led by Board of Trustee members William "Chip" Bernhard '77 and Gil Brueckner, over 70 alumni and friends of Cedarville College enjoyed an evening of fellowship with Dr. Paul Dixon, Cedarville College president, and Roscoe Smith '82, director of public relations. On August 24, 1996, an alumni reception was held at Garfield Baptist Church, where Chip is senior pastor, Jim Reiter '86 serves as associate pastor, and many Cedarville alumni are members.

Columbus, Ohio

Over 100 alumni, family members, and friends participated in Cedarville College Day at the Columbus Zoo on September 28, 1996. The Alumni Association provided complimentary tickets for alumni and their families to visit the zoo with the lunch hour set aside for fellowship with all who attended. Dave Bennett '87 organized the day's event with assistance from alumni council member Amy Womack '81.

Cleveland, Ohio

The new Great Lakes Science Center was the location for gathering more than 120 Cleveland area alumni, family, and friends. Organized by Mark Riley '84, the alumni enjoyed an entire day exploring the science center and gathered for a brief time of fellowship and this group picture in the afternoon.

Heritage Alumni at Riverfront Stadium

As is our summer tradition, 25 Heritage Alumni journeyed to Cincinnati, Ohio to take in an afternoon ballgame with the Reds. Before the game, the group lunched on Mike Fink's Riverboat. The group enjoyed fellowship with Dave Bartlett, director of planned giving for the College.

Their oldest daughter, Heather '93, is teaching at a missionary boarding school in Malaysia and their son, Brad, is a student at Cedarville College. Twin daughters Shonda and Holly are freshman at Cornerstone College in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Shannon Barnard '94N married Stephen Krise '96, and they are living in Xenia, Ohio. Chuck Truxton '67 and his wife, Bev, are home in the States for a short furlough. They arrived in Laurel Springs, New Jersey in July 1996 and will return to Nigeria in January 1997. While in Nigeria, their daughter Martha graduated from Hillcrest School where Chuck has been on the Board of Governors for the last six years. Martha will join older sister Jenny at Messiah College this school year. This furlough time will allow the Truxtons to settle Martha in school while they renew contacts with family, friends, and supporting churches.

Douglas '77N and Linda Carlton Wilson '77N are appointees to England with the Association of Baptists for World Evangelism. They went on a missions outreach trip to Great Britain in 1994 and felt the Lord calling them to surrender their lives to reach the people of England who live in spiritual darkness. Their daughter Holly is a student at Cedarville and daughter Stephanie is in high school in Mogadore, Ohio where they currently live.

Vini Jacquery '82 was featured on the "Focus On The Family" radio program on September 12, 1996 to give a presentation titled, Children In Crisis. The purpose of the broadcast was to explain the plight of children in Brazil and the ministry he leads to reach "the least of these." Vini and his wife, Alexandra, work in Brazil with International Reach, an organization Vini founded to help the many homeless children of Brazil.

Nathan Bobbitt '90 is working in a closed middle eastern country among radical Shiite muslims. He completed his M.Div. from Trinity Evangelical Divinity School and worked on the staff of a nondenominational church in Chicago in order to prepare for his work.

Bobby '90 and Sara Sweetland Hile '92 were back in the United States for a short trip during November 1996. They returned to purchase equipment for their new ministry, airing the "Children's Bible Hour" radio program in Durban, South Africa. Bobby met with Cedarville College professors to learn all he could about the computer program he will be using in the studio. He also presented the "Children's Bible Hour" ministry in several of their supporting churches.

Dwight '91 and Kari Kaelber Davidson '93 left for the Czech Republic on September 23, 1996. Dwight graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary in May with an M.Div. and won the Robert L. Maitland Award in New Testament Exegesis. # A Career Services Update

"Focus On The Future"

INSPIRE: What is the primary mission of Career Services?

Lew: At the very heart of our mission is the belief that we must contribute to "advancing the kingdom" by preparing students to carry a Christ-like standard into the global workplace. We develop students in three crucial ways. First, their knowledge base: abilities, interests, desires, and career possibilities and options. Second, their networking skills: connecting them to alumni businesses and various other organizations. And third, their navigational skills: improving and enhancing them for a lifetime of career adjustments and growth.

INSPIRE: Why are alumni important to Career Services?

Lew: The alumni are our hands and feet and our eyes and ears all over the world. They are the finger on the pulse of the global job market. Our ability to provide information to the students increases exponentially when we connect them with those who are affecting the world for Christ.

Lew Gibbs, the new director of Career Services, is a 30-year IBMer who brings experience and vision to the department.

Patty Belliveau (right), the new assistant to the director, is a licensed social worker with a varied background, combining experience working with students as well as with the business community. Lori Phipps '96 is also new to the office and brings significant organizational and counseling skills to Career Services.

CareerNet Alumni-Parent Network

The Career Services Department believes that one of the most vital techniques in developing job search strategies is networking. Alumni and parents are vital sources for job-related networking. Databases are being developed to provide geographical alumni-parent resources for full-time, part-time, and internship opportunities. Alumni are encouraged to be a liaison for Cedarville College students and other alumni in their place of employment, provide training via seminars on issues in the current workplace and act as links for students and other alumni to opportunities in their present geographies.
